NEW MILITARY WORK.

Just Published and for Sale,
At the Booksellers of R. Gray, and Cotton and Stewart—

PRICE 4 DOLLARS 50 CENTS—

Rules and Regulations for the Field Exercise and Manoeuvres of the French Infantry, issued August 1st, 1791; and the Manoeuvres added, which have been since adopted by the emperor Napoleon. Also, the Manoeuvres of the Field Artillery, with Infantry. By Col. Irénée Amelot de Lacroix, late Chief of Brigade in the French service. In three volumes, the third volume consisting of plates.

The principal part of this work has been translated from French to English, by Lieut. Col. Macdonald, in the service of His Britannick majesty. Col. de Lacroix has not only availed himself of Macdonald's translation, but has retained the principal theories, with which Col. M. has enriched his work, especially his comparison of the French tactics with the Prussian, and the principles of the different nations with the English; because those valuable notes are sufficient for such comparisons; and are in point. Col. De L. has augmented those notes.

The introduction of Col. de Lacroix's work will direct the attention of the young Americans to the study of learned tactics, the result of experience, and enable them to obtain the precision desirable in the warrior, for they must be convinced that a good officer forms a good soldier, and that the experience of ages has demonstrated, that the soldier will perform his duty correctly, when he is well commanded.

At the end of the second volume of this work, Col. De Lacroix has added the manœuvres of the field artillery with the infantry, according to the French principles. It is not necessary to lavish praises on the advantage of moving this thundering arm with the same facility and celerity as the line. Europe is now convinced and confesses it. He has added Plates, which demonstrate those manœuvres so essential to the great operations of war, and which will enable officers to execute them.

Col. de Lacroix has judged it also expedient to add to this book some new adopted manœuvres, which have been put in practice to great advantage in the face of an enemy. To enhance the value of this work is the only motive could induce him to augment its size.

Twenty Dollars Reward.

ASCONDED from my farm at the mouth of Seneca, about the 7th of last month, a man whose name is RATPH, 21 years of age, between a black and yellow color, nearly 6 feet high, very stout made, yellowish eyes looking heavy—he has but little to say. His apparel was oznaburg shirts, a negro cotton overjacket and trousers. It is likely he has made away with them and procured other clothing. A free negro man by name Sambo, living on Judge Washington's estate Mount Vernon, is his father, and it is very probable he is thereabout in Alexandria, and with little trouble may be found.

The above reward will be given to secure him in Washington City or Alexandria jail.

TUESDAY, JUNE 26.

Divisions in the enemy's Camp—Most of the democratic papers have anathematized the last Congress, and some of them have included the executive in their fulminations. The former have more cunning because they lay the blame upon a body which will cease to be before the termination of another year. They act upon the ground of its being safer to abuse the dead than the living, though it may be less generous conduct.

The Whig boldly charges both the executive and Congress with corruption; the former as the agent, and the latter as the patient; to a degree, which renders them "more dangerous than all our foreign enemies." It has been the drift of numberless publications and the object of endless labors of the federal republicans to inculcate the probability of what is now plainly confessed without subterfuge by one of the oracles of its political adversaries. Whether it be owing to our want of argument or their want of confidence, that they have not been sooner convinced, is now of trifling moment. The fact stands confessed in open day by one whom they are not in the habit of distrusting. Let them listen to Baptist Irvine, and withdraw their confidence.—

From the Whig of the 16th instant.

"One thing is certain; THE INTRIGUE, DELUSION AND CORRUPTION OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE U. STATES, AFFECTED BY THE CABINET, ARE MORE DANGEROUS THAN ALL OUR FOREIGN ENEMIES."

After this avowal, to what party will the Whig be deemed to belong? Certainly not to the ruling party, for he exposes them in the face of the whole world, cabinet & all, as a parcel of corrupt knaves, more dangerous to our safety than all the world beside.

The American does not at once proceed the full length of the Whig. He is of opinion, that it will be useless to call Congress, because they have been tried and found wanting. We think so too; but at the same time, we believe them to be as capable of drill and as obedient to the word of command, as they were in times past.—It is, therefore, Mr. Madison has made up his mind upon any thing he thinks beneficial, upon any thing which will extricate us from the slough of submission in which we lie—let him call them together and give them his advice, expressed without subterfuge or double entendre; and we are much inclined to think he will not find himself disappointed in a dutiful obedience to his high will. Nor are we altogether satisfied of the fairness of pronouncing them refractory, when their ignorance may be alone to be blamed. If he will manfully recommend any thing decisive, which they shall not adopt, he will certainly save himself from being included in the common imputation of incapacity and cowardice, so liberally cast upon them by his minions: provided that he does not, in pursuance of one of Mr. Jefferson's expedients, frustrate by private management his public declared sentiments. The constitution authorises him to give his opinion, and the acknowledged imbecility of his parliament called loudly for it long ago. Many true democrats were much surprised at his withholding it throughout the whole of last session, but unfortunately as the John Adams would not arrive till it was time to adjourn, it is plain he could not give them the counsel they needed, for that depended upon Bonaparte, [Federal Republican.]

From the Connecticut Courier.

THE LATE ELECTIONS.

The issue of the elections in the three eastern states, and the state of New York, has of late been the occasion of much exultation by the triumphant party. The event has no less disappointed their fears than gratified their wishes. Indeed, nothing could have been so little expected as that the free and enlightened people of those states, who had just recovered from the delusive confidence reposed in an administration which by a series of diabolical measures, dictated by a foreign power, the enemy of all free governments, and aspiring to a dominion over all, should so soon descend to be the advocates of those very measures which they had so lately condemned, and even while bleeding at the wounds which they had inflicted. Is any thing transpired to evince the wisdom of their plans which did not exist at the time when the good people of these states, but one year since frowned upon the proceedings of the general government? On the contrary, is not the abandonment of their schemes, and that too brought about by the displeasure expressed by the freemen of these states, an implied but strong admission of their imbecility and ruinous tendency? If the restrictive measures relative to commerce are abolished, is it owing to the prudent councils of our government, or to the temperate resistance of the citizens which pointed out a wiser policy? Did not every step which was taken to redress our grievances, both in its adoption and execution, hold out to the nation the character of a set of rulers wholly unfit to administer its affairs? The cause, whatever it may be, which could again effect a proffer of confidence to such men at such a time, so far from being a subject calculated to afford satisfaction to all sober and reflecting men is an evil omen to the future welfare of our country. It is a public pledge to our rulers that whatever calamities they bring down upon the land, however corrupt or weak may be the means by which this is accomplished, though dictated by a partiality or timidity towards one nation, or a personal antipathy to another—though a ruined commerce and exhausted treasury, discord at home, aggression from abroad, taxes increased and means diminished, and a thousand other evils, to follow in a funeral procession without end, still nothing can impair its full reliance upon their wisdom, altho' it threatens to conduct us to our certain ruin. In such a state of things good men can only regret the evil and submit to it. Indeed, it is not to be disguised that the party which is the systematic advocate of this destructive policy, is strong and powerful even to the utmost wishes of the most extravagant admirer of its tenets, or most zealous devotee of arbitrary power, or the boldest partizan for French influence and interest. Its numbers and power are great enough, if such be its object, to carry any measure even though it should be to the destruction of our constitution—even though it should be to admit a foreign foe within our borders, and bow the neck of our government to its yoke. They could not even wish for a smaller party to resist its designs, nor a larger one than its own to accomplish its purposes. Still, notwithstanding this disparity of strength and influence over our national affairs, the sober reflecting portion of the friends of that party will do well to consider what is to be gained by a blind adherence to men who have betrayed such weakness or wickedness as nothing but open resistance to them could save us from utter destruction, through their wild theories & rash experiments. The good people of this country will do wisely to reflect upon the expediency of submitting their best interests to the direction of French intrigue. They had best beware of an administration which, from the very commencement of its power to the present time, in every step of its progress, may be traced by its devotedness to that man who has already subdued nearly one quarter of the world to his dominion. They may soon see the time when it will be necessary to call to their aid that minority which has once saved the country from total ruin, to resist once more a scheme or system which, though it has hitherto frustrated, is not abandoned—which only waits for a propitious moment for carrying it into complete execution.—That system which I mean is the continental system of Europe, the destruction of English commerce: the exclusion of English produce and manufactures from our country."

[FROM THE PEOPLE'S MONITOR.]

Read this again and again—then read it again and ponder.

We invite attention to the following narrative and remarks. It is among the most interesting subjects that has occurred for some time. If it causes the patriot's heart to bleed, it may open the eyes of those whose only error has been enthusiasm and infatuation.

Extract of a letter from an officer on board the U. States brig Ferret, off Charleston harbor, (S. C.) dated 6th May, 1810, to a gentleman in Talbot county (Md.)

"Some short time past, there was a French privateer came in here under pretext of being in distress—landed upwards of two hundred thousand dollars—smuggled a quantity of goods and obtained permission to sell other goods to the amount of twenty thousand dollars to defray the expenses of living out, which did not exceed five thousand dollars—and this morning the master of the privateer had scurvy numbered vessels out of this port. Some time after, she was ready for sea and had chosen men: they had provision enough to sustain her laden with provisions, at which the captain took umbrage and swore he would have revenge, which he has taken. He (the captain of the French privateer) wrote several letters to different captains, or rather sent messages to them by the pilot, that he would let them pass for five thousand dollars, otherwise he would burn them if they came out. And to crown all, the other day he fired merely for his amusement a volley of musketry into a packet right on the bar (Charleston bar)—He got under weigh from close in shore, for he always lays at anchor there until he sees vessels, run up under the lee of the packet, shot a gentleman in the arm (a passenger) which passed through his shoulder, and then, with all the impudence imaginable, told the capt. he might pass. Instead of ordering us out to sink the villain, or to bring him in for trial (for it was mere chance that he had not killed four or five of the passengers, as they were all standing on the quarter, not expecting that the damned murderer was going to fire at them when they were within pistol shot) they let the privateer still remain, blockading the port of Charleston and killing its citizens, without even sending the revenue cutter after her, which lies here with eight guns and plenty of men; the privateer having only two guns and 70 men. The officers of the privateer would come on shore every night at Charleston and get visiting; I have seen them myself at the theatre. At length, after a great noise had been made, the collector sent out the revenue cutter in pursuit of her, as it is said, but not until she had gone. The privateer is now off St. Mary's and I suppose will lay that place under contribution, or run in and make either vessels or town give her provisions at least.

"How easy would it have been for the collector to authorize the commanding officer of the Ferret, or request captain Campbell, who commands on this station, to send us out and bring the privateer in? No, he would not do that; perhaps he owns part of her; it is said she belongs here, and no doubt but the captain of the cutter had private orders not to fall in with her. "Had this been a British privateer, I do not think in the first place, she would have been permitted to fit out; and had she committed the same outrages or even come to anchor on our bar, all the merchantmen in our port would have been armed; the militia turned out, and every old market and corn cutter in the state would have been sharpened to cut the tyrannical pirate, and no doubt would, could they catch her, have put every man to death. Never mind, we are going off St. Mary's in a few days;—we'll bring him too if we see him; I generally have the pointing of the charge gun, and may I be d—d if I don't take deliberate aim and whip it into him. This statement I had from the captain of the packet and several of the passengers—it is perfectly correct."

REMARKS.

Among the numberless instances of degradations and injuries and insults which our country has been doomed to suffer from France, beginning with its cut-throat emperor and going thro' all its departments down to its ships of war, picaroons and privateers, those sculling holes of villainy, robbery and assassination—nothing has occurred that marks in stronger characters the subserviency of our administration and its lick-spittle, and corrupt agents, than the above narrative. Under the famous non-intercourse law, which, like all the other doings of our poor, patry, know-nothing administration, was to do every thing, and has itself sunk into disgrace, impotence and contempt—message boats and vessels in distress, both of England and France, might be received into our ports; and vessels which come in distress are allowed to refit so as to become sea worthy, and, if necessary, they are permitted to sell to such an amount of cargo, as will defray the necessary expences of such refitting. But that a French or British privateer should come into an American port and deposit two hundred thousand dollars in specie—sell goods to the amount of twenty thousand dollars & smuggle other goods—thereby doubly violating our laws in our own harbors under the very nose of the government officer who is paid and provided with men, guns and vessels to prevent such things; and all this under pretence of refitting, which did not cost more than four thousand dollars—and after this to enter men in an American port, then go out, blockade that same port, capture American merchantmen in sight, shoot passengers on board an American packet for amusement in the name of the law, and then burn them on shore. What a mockery is this! What a miserable nation! How dare we return in the world? How dare we call ourselves a nation? How dare we call ourselves a free people? That is as bad as to be a slave. That is as bad as to be a serf. That is as bad as to be a vassal. That is as bad as to be a subject. They are celebrated for removing habitual constiveness; sickness at the stomach and severer headache; and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman:

Twenty Dollars Reward,

Will be paid to any person who will deliver to me in Madison county,

Negro B. I. L. L. Y.

WHO cloped on the 24th of last month.

He is a likely fellow, about 20 years of age, 5 feet eight or nine inches high, is markedly straight, and has a scar on one of his cheeks, I believe the left, occasioned by a cut; he is a cooper by trade, and served his apprenticeship at the Occoquan Mills, and was purchased some years ago by Mr. Thos. Richards, of a Mrs. Waggoner, who lived in the neighborhood of that place. He was seen eight days ago on his way to Alexandria, where he said he was going to get employment. I think it highly probable he may be found in the neighborhood of the above Mill.

LAND FOR SALE.

THE Subscriber, living in the County of King George, on the Potomac river, having great inconvenience in flowing quarters at a distance, offers for sale his valuable TRACT OF LAND in the County of Fauquier and state of Virginia, lying in a most healthy part of the state, in the neighborhood of three valuable merchant Mills, between the Leather-Cat and Pignut mountains, ten miles from the court house of the said county, and seven miles from Haymarket, where the newly contemplated turnpike road will pass, six miles from Middleburg and 45 miles from the City of Washington and the commercial town of Alexandria.—The great road from the Ridge by the White Plains passes through it, on which there is an excellent wagon stand, from whence great quantities of manure are annually collected. Two-thirds of this estate is uncleared, and in excellent timber. The soil is well adapted to the cultivation of Indian Corn, Wheat and Tobacco; and from experiments made, no land is better suited for the use of the planter. There is a dwelling house on this estate newly finished, with two rooms on a floor, and other convenient out houses, calculated for the accommodation of a small family.—This estate is at present divided into two farms, on each of which there is an excellent granary, farm houses, &c. There is at present from forty to sixty acres of land in Timothy and Clover on this estate; and eighty or an hundred acres more may very conveniently be added. No estate is better or more conveniently watered than this. It is bounded by Broad Run on the west for nearly one mile and a half; and Mill Run, a never failing stream, runs through the middle of it, on which there is an excellent site for an overshot Mill and Distillery. The subscriber will divide this estate into three or more farms to suit the convenience of purchasers. It is deemed unnecessary to say more, as it is presumed that those who may be inclined to purchase will first view the premises. A reasonable accommodation will be given purchasers as to the payments. Letters addressed to the subscriber, post-paid, will meet with due attention.

Richard Steuart.

Cedar Grove, June 26.

THE subscribers have taken out letters of attorney to collect the estate of ROBERT CARTER, deceased, in the state of Virginia—those who have claims against the estate will please exhibit them for settlement, and those who are indebted to it will pay without delay.
